BLACKBURN WITH DARWEN, BLACKPOOL AND LANCASHIRE CHILDREN'S SAFEGUARDING ASSURANCE PARTNERSHIP

In 2019, the three previous Local Safeguarding Children Boards of Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire were replaced by the Children's Safeguarding Assurance Partnership (CSAP), under which the safeguarding partners work together to identify and respond to the needs of children.

The three local safeguarding partners jointly leading the CSAP are:

- The three local authorities of Blackburn with Darwen Council, Blackpool Council and Lancashire County Council, represented by their respective Directors of Children's Services
- Lancashire Constabulary, represented by Assistant Chief Constable for Crime and Special Capabilities
- The eight Clinical Commissioning Groups of Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool, Chorley and South Ribble, East Lancashire, Fylde and Wyre, Greater Preston, Morecambe Bay, and West Lancashire represented by the Health Executive Group.

The CSAP operates in line with the requirements of the statutory guidance Working Together to Safeguard Children 2018, which states that safeguarding partners should publish a threshold document, which sets out the local criteria for action in a way that is transparent, accessible and easily understood. The Working Well with Children and Families in Lancashire guidance fulfils this requirement.

Purpose

This multi-agency guide is for everyone who works with children, young people and their families in Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire local authority areas. It is publicly available for anyone to access, and is particularly key for organisations including:

- Health
- The Police
- Local Authorities
- Schools
- Colleges
- Nurseries
- Voluntary and peer group organisations working with children, young people and families
- Providers of support for children, young people and families

The guide is about children, young people and families, but it is relevant to staff working in a wide range of service areas such as adult mental health, community health, adult social care, housing, and leisure.

The guide is made up of three parts:

Part One The summary document gives an overview of the levels of need that children, young people and families might experience through their lives in Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire, and broadly who should respond to these needs and how.

Part Two Provides some more detailed information about levels of need and some examples to provide context.

Part Three

- This is different for each local authority area (Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire) and talks about how services are organised and delivered in each area including contact details.

The guide talks about how we can work with families to build on their strengths and come together across agencies to put the child at the centre of our work. It is designed to ensure that we give families who are experiencing challenges the advice, information and support they need that helps them make a positive difference to their lives.

The guide does not sit in isolation. Each area has strategies which support areas of work that are relevant to all professionals and that are locally developed with partners, including Early Help, Exploitation and Neglect strategies. Within organisations, and across the Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire Children's Safeguarding Assurance Partnership, there will be guides and training about how to identify, assess and support children, young people and families who are experiencing challenge and contact details for safeguarding leads or champions.

Working Together (2018) is the statutory guidance published by the Department of Education that describes how partners need to work together to support children, young people and families. Working Well with Children and Families in Lancashire has been developed in line with the Working Together principles.

The core principles of the Children Act 1989 which were reviewed within the Public Law Working Group equally remain relevant and fit for purpose. These principles underpin the Working Together (2018) document and are summarised as follows:

- The child's welfare is paramount and should be applied consciously and intuitively by practitioners working in the safeguarding arena.
- The child's views should hold high importance and be captured and documented no matter how young.

Working in Partnership with children and families, including other significant adults, should support in identifying issues and bringing about change.

- A multi-disciplinary approach with key partners such as health and education should be used to effect positive change.

Equally for those children with an allocated social worker the Children and Social Work Act 2017 expects all LA's to ensure that such children achieve early permanence at whatever stage they are on the journey. For those children who do become looked after PAN Lancs our offer is:

- To be the best corporate parents that we can be.
- To publish our support to care leavers
- To promote educational attainment for all children looked after from those who are adopted to those in long term placement and those leaving care.

Introduction

Across Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire, we all believe that every child should have the opportunity to reach their full potential and that children and young people are best supported to grow and achieve within their own families. The work of people who are alongside families when they are experiencing challenge should be geared toward building strong foundations and developing assets and resilience so that children and young people thrive. Equally, there will be times when, despite everyone's best efforts to support families, children and young people need our protection to stop them from being harmed. When this is the case, local authority children's services will work with partners to provide this protection. This guide should help practitioners working with families to make sure they are using their resources to best effect, as early as possible when problems emerge and to help them get access to more help for families if it is needed.

Different local authorities across the area might use different words to describe how they work with children, young people and families, but all of the ways of working have the common belief that for the majority of children, the best place for them to be is with their own families. With the right support at the right time, most families are able to stay together safely.

By working together in our communities, we will ensure that there is a range of flexible, localised services which are responsive to children, young people and families' needs and provide the right level of intervention, at the right time, by the right person. This approach will help to build purposeful relationships which help develop effective interventions and support for children, young people and their families at an earlier stage.

Professionals working across Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire are committed to the following values which inform the way we work with children, young people and families:

- Being respectful and building relationships by working alongside children, young people and families and seeking their informed consent and agreement.
- Being understanding, kind and empathic. Recognising and working to families' strengths – especially those of parents and carers and taking the time to understand their needs fully.
- Being purposeful. Focusing on preventing problems before they occur and offering flexible, responsive and constructive support when and where it is required.
- Being constructive. Helping to build the resilience of, children, young people, families and communities to support each other.
- Being open and transparent with each other as well as with families. Working together across the whole system engaging well with communities and aligning our resources to best support families and do what needs to be done, when it needs to be done.
- Being fair. Basing all that we do on evidence and analysis of both what is needed and of what works and being brave enough to stop things that are wrong.
- Being honest. Being clear and consistent about the outcomes we expect.

These values are underpinned by the Children Act 1989 and more specifically, Working Together 2018 which states that: “Anyone working with children should see and speak to the child; listen to what they say; take their views seriously; and work with them and their families collaboratively when deciding how to support dialogue with children who have communication difficulties unaccompanied children, refugees and those children who are victims of modern slavery and/or trafficking”. Working Together 2018 should be read alongside this guidance document.

How Families, Children and Young People are Supported in their Communities

Universal Services seek to work with families to meet all the needs of children and young people so that they are happy, healthy and able to learn and develop securely. Universal services are provided to all children and young people, including those with additional and intensive needs. However, some children and young people, either because of health needs, disabilities or because of less advantageous circumstances, will need extra help from universal services to be healthy, safe and to achieve their potential.

All families can access Universal Services such as:

- maternity services at birth
- GPs
- primary care
- health visiting
- funded childcare hours
- primary education
- school nursing
- family support
- secondary school
- further education and youth services for older children

Across Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool and Lancashire, we want to offer help and support to our families who experience challenge at the earliest opportunity in a voluntary way that does not leave them feeling singled out as different. This is because we want to prevent, wherever possible, situations escalating to the point that the family no longer feel, or indeed are, fully in control. When families do not feel in control, it is more likely that a child's health, wellbeing and development will be affected. We want to ensure that children, young people and families know about and are able to access their community assets and that they support them well. We call this "early help".

A large amount of public money is invested in a wide range of services for children, young people and families across the area in universal services and early help. It is important that when families experience challenges, practitioners work together to use public money and staff resources effectively to bring about positive changes which are led by families and their communities. Early help may occur at any point in a child or young person's life and includes interventions early in life as well as early in the development of a problem to prevent it getting worse. It includes help for adults in a family to help them support their children well and understand their needs.

Levels of Need

In this guide we have identified four broad levels of need:

Level 1 needs - Universal

- Most children, young people and families will experience challenges in their lives that impact on their wellbeing. Most families will be able to weather these challenges (are resilient to them) either without help from services, or with advice, guidance and support from universal services, including empathy and understanding.

Level 2 needs - Universal Plus

- Some children, young people and families will need support from people who know them well and have established relationships with them to meet some challenges where advice and guidance has not been enough to help the family achieve change or where a child or young person needs additional support to help them to thrive.

Level 3 needs - Intensive

- A small number of children, young people and families will experience significant difficulties and will need coordinated support from experts working with them to find sustainable solutions that reduce the impact of challenge on the wellbeing and development of children and young people.

Level 4 needs - Specialist

- In exceptional cases families need specialist, statutory support that is designed to maintain or repair relationships and keep families together wherever possible. In some very specific circumstances, the needs are so great that children need to be away from their family to ensure that they are protected from harm and in these circumstances the local authority becomes their “corporate parent”.

Levels of Need – At a Glance

See page 23 of Part 2 for a larger version

Services for children and young people with universal plus and intensive needs are sometimes known as targeted services. Targeted services bring expertise to universal services and include services such as behaviour and/or learning support in schools, extra support to parents and carers in early years or focussed help to involve young people experiencing particular challenges through youth services. They are delivered by a range of people in different organisations across health, schools, local authority, police, voluntary agencies, community groups and many others.

Across Lancashire, all partners share the belief that children, young people and families with universal plus needs are best helped to find the right solution by those who already work with them, such as their health visitor, nursery or school. They are able to support the family by coordinating additional support with local partners as needed.

When someone is supporting children, young people and their family in this way, an Early Help Assessment/CAF co-ordinated by a named person who knows the child and family best, will help to gather and analyse relevant information and co-ordinate work alongside the child and family.

Services working with adults in the family should be included in this plan as it helps coordinate how everyone is working to a common aim.

For children and young people whose needs are intensive, a coordinated multi-disciplinary approach where people from different organisations with different skills, knowledge and experience work together with a family, will be best. These approaches need careful coordination to make sure the children, young people and the family are always at the centre of the work, and will need assessments and a plan which identifies a named Lead Professional to work closely with the child and family to ensure they receive all the support they require.

Specialist services are where the needs of the child or young person are so great that statutory and/or specialist intervention is required to keep them safe or to ensure their continued development.

By working together effectively with children, young people and families with emerging needs at the earliest opportunity we seek to prevent more children and young people requiring statutory interventions and reactive specialist services.

PART TWO – DETAILED GUIDE TO WORKING WELL WITH CHILDREN AND FAMILIES IN LANCASHIRE

OUR PRINCIPLES FOR WORKING WITH FAMILIES, CHILDREN AND YOUNG PEOPLE.

Across Lancashire, there are two unitary authorities who have social care responsibilities (Blackburn with Darwen and Blackpool). All other areas of Lancashire are supported by the County Council. There is one Integrated Care System covering Lancashire and South Cumbria, and five Integrated Care Partnerships which support health delivery and commissioning. There is one Police force, with three local delivery areas across Lancashire.

In each local authority area, the way services are delivered and commissioned for children, young people and families are slightly different and sometimes use different language – this is because it is based on the differing needs and priorities in these communities. However, these ways of working are underpinned by a common set of principles which are embedded within all organisations working with children, young people and families. These principles are underpinned by the values set out in part one of Working Well with Children and Families in Lancashire.

These principles are:

- That children and young people are at the heart of what we do, and we should never lose sight of their lived experiences and their voice
- That children and young people feel safe in the knowledge that adults in their home, school and community are working together to keep them safe but will intervene if necessary, to protect them from harm
- That we should work WITH families, not do things to them. Working with families to build on their strengths and protective factors.
- That we consider the impact of trauma upon children and young people and how such experiences may alter their life course
- That we should seek to support children and young people within their family network wherever possible.
- That children and young people with additional or special educational needs and disabilities, and children and young people who are vulnerable because of their family circumstance, should be supported to have equity of aspiration and outcomes with their peers.
- That the networks in a family's life, the school their child attends, the community that they live in and the people around them can help to build assets, capacity and resilience for families when problems are identified early and addressed with honesty and collaborative working.
- That families should not have to tell their stories to a range of different professionals throughout their lives to get help. People involved in supporting families should share information and plans, with the knowledge, and when appropriate, consent of the family, to help them work effectively together.

Across the local authority areas, we have agreed the levels of need and the broad description of how services can and should respond. As far as we are able, we have common guidance, policies and procedures so that our partner agencies, particularly schools, health and the police who work across Lancashire do not need to access three different sources of information to help guide their work with families. Whilst there are variations in service delivery and ways of accessing services (outlined in part three) the overall principles and values outlined in parts one and two apply across the county.

The guidance illustrates how agencies should respond to children, young people and families across four levels of need (Universal, Universal Plus, Intensive and Specialist). In this model, all services seek to work openly with the family, or with children and young people on their own where it is appropriate, in order to support them to identify, talk honestly about and address their needs at the lowest possible level. We agree to actively work with children, young people and families to prevent their needs escalating to a higher level. We will only request services at a higher level after we have exhausted the resources and expertise at the earliest level of intervention (other than when there is immediate risk of significant harm).

The levels of need table on pages 3-5 and the more detailed indicators of need set out on pages 7-13, illustrate how services operate across Lancashire and clarify the threshold between each level. This guide seeks to give clear advice to all professionals and the public on the levels of need and thresholds for different responses in Lancashire.

We recognise that each child/young person and family member is an individual, and each family is unique in its make-up, so reaching decisions about levels of needs and the best intervention requires discussion, reflection and professional judgement applied in the context of the lived experience of the child, young person and family.

WORKING WELL WITH CHILDREN, YOUNG PEOPLE AND FAMILIES

There are several factors that are essential to achieving good outcomes when working with children, young people and families.

An open, honest and transparent approach to supporting children, young people and their families

Parents/carers are usually the best people to understand their child's needs; however, parenting can be challenging. Families deserve support when they request it. Asking for help should be seen as a sign of responsibility rather than failure. Families tell us that support works well when they are respected and listened to by the people who work with them or they approach for help. In the majority of cases, it should be the decision of the parents/carers when to ask for help or advice but there are occasions when practitioners may need to engage parents/carers and families actively to help them to prevent problems from becoming more serious. This is more likely to be successful when practitioners show empathy and work with families to explore how problems have come about and how to make change. All practitioners need to work honestly and openly with families, acknowledge strengths, discuss any concerns with them and ensure that they are involved in decision making. It is important they acknowledge and respect the contribution of family members in the work that they do.

Early, solution-focused and evidence-based interventions

It is important that any needs are identified early, so that the child/young person and their family receive appropriate support in a timely way to prevent the problem from escalating.

Everyone who works with families will work with them as soon as any needs emerge, to help them to identify the things they want to change and the support they need. The most effective support is tailored to the family's needs and provided at the minimum level necessary to ensure the desirable outcomes are achieved, with as little intrusion into and disruption to family life as possible.

A joint working approach to assessment, support and intervention

Protecting and promoting the welfare of children and young people is the responsibility of everyone in Lancashire who works or has contact with children, young people and their families no matter what organisation they work for.

The joint working approach ensures that children, young people and families are understood and responded to, so that they receive the right support and practical help in a co-ordinated way, when they need it. Partners and professionals who work with children, young people and their families should, usually with informed parental consent, consult one another, share information and work together to ensure that the child/young person and their family get the most appropriate and effective support.

A confident workforce with a common core of knowledge and understanding about children and young people's needs and the skills to work with families

Appropriate, effective and timely support for children, young people and families cannot be achieved without the professional judgement and expertise that all practitioners working with children and young people bring to their role. Across Lancashire agencies will engage in training and development to support confident practitioners who can work in an open, non-judgemental way with families to enable them to make choices and changes.

Consent

Throughout this document, and in others that you will read, you will see reference to consent. Consent is needed from children, young people and families at key points in their journey – and can only be disposed of when there is an overriding concern for the welfare of children, young people or families and their safety. Even when this is the case, only in exceptional circumstances should family's details be discussed and shared with other agencies without their knowledge.

Meaningful consent is crucial in helping families feel empowered to make informed decisions and have autonomy, understanding the consequences of the decisions made. This is crucial in ensuring that services are working with families and not doing things to them. It supports them to know that they can and should be in the driving seat of the support available to them. It should be informed consent – if you are planning to or need to share their information with more than one organisation, you should be specific about this. Tell them what information you are going to share, who with and why you think it is the right thing to do.

You need consent to:

- Make a referral or request for a service to another agency or arrange a multi-agency meeting
- Consult with other agencies about a family to help you to determine what support they might need where you are sharing their personal details

You do not need consent to:

- Have a conversation with the Children's Advice and Duty Service (CADS) / Child and Family Advice and Support Hub / Multi Agency Safeguarding Hub (MASH) / Designated Safeguarding Lead within your organisation where you do not share identifiable details of the family.

You do not need consent, nor should you delay, but should, wherever possible, inform the family when:

- You are concerned that a child/young person, family member or other person has come to, or is likely to come to significant harm and you need to share this with other agencies so that they can take steps to ensure their safety.

If a family or individual refuses to give consent but you are sufficiently concerned about a child/young person or vulnerable person and feel you need to share information anyway, you should explain this to the family unless you are concerned that in doing so, you are placing the child/young person, yourself or anyone else at immediate risk.

WHEN FAMILIES NEED ADDITIONAL HELP

Level 2 – Universal Plus

If a family has needs which are assessed as Level 2 “Universal Plus”, multi-agency practitioners are expected to work together to meet the family, child or young person’s additional needs. Practitioners should work alongside the family and secure their informed consent to share information with other agencies. Work at Level 2 should seek to help families build on the assets they have, to do work with them so that they can help themselves to improve a situation or make change, rather than do things around or to them.

Practitioners can access services using their own agency internal guidelines or by using specific request for service forms/letters when requesting involvement of other additional need services. Parent/carers should always sign to give consent to the request for service and to information sharing. We should also ask young people who demonstrate Fraser competence, especially those aged over 15, to give their consent.

Where the problems or needs are more complex, practitioners should complete an Early Help Assessment/CAF with the family. This is a tool to use with the family to discuss and record the needs, strengths, goals and views that they identify, leading to an Early Help Plan to support them.

Level 3 – Intensive Support

Prior to requesting services at Level 3 “Intensive Support”, practitioners are expected to have worked together with the child/young person and family to meet their Universal Plus needs using an Early Help Assessment/CAF and multi-agency meetings.

Intensive support should again be focussed on working with families, children and young people. Support for families should not be designed to “rescue” them from situations, but to help them to restore family life with evidence-based interventions that help them to make long term, lasting change that they are in control of.

Sometimes, despite the best efforts of professionals to work purposefully with and alongside children, young people and families to support them to make change, concerns about outcomes for children and young people do not improve. If, after a period of working with the family, practitioners identify that a child/young person and their family would benefit from a more intensive multi-disciplinary response than they can provide or coordinate; they should discuss this with the child/young person and family, update the Early Help Assessment/CAF and complete a referral/request for support form.

Level 4 – Specialist Support

Children’s Social Care has a responsibility to children in need under Section 17 of the Children Act 1989. That is, children and young people whose development would be significantly impaired if services are not provided. This includes children and young people who have a long lasting and substantial disability, which limits their ability to carry out the tasks of daily living.

For a child in need, a referral/request for support to Children’s Social Care is appropriate when more substantial interventions are needed: where a child or young person’s development is being significantly impaired because of the impact of complex parental mental ill health, learning disability or substance misuse, or very challenging behaviour in the home.

A social care referral/request for support is also appropriate where parent/carers need practical support and respite at home because of a disabled child or young person’s complex care needs. In these situations, Children’s Social Care will work with families on a voluntary basis, often in partnership with other professionals, to improve the welfare of the children/young people and to prevent problems escalating to a point that statutory child protection intervention is needed.

The second area of Children's Social Care responsibility is child protection; that is where Children's Social Care must make enquiries under Section 47 of the Children Act 1989, to determine whether a child or young person is suffering or is likely to suffer significant harm. The Children Act 1989 introduced the concept of significant harm as the threshold that justifies compulsory intervention in family life in the best interests of children and young people.

There is no absolute criteria on which to rely upon when judging what constitutes significant harm. Consideration of the severity of ill-treatment may include the degree and the extent of physical harm, the duration and frequency of abuse and neglect, and the severity of the emotional and physical impact on the child/young person. It is important to consider age and context – babies and young children are particularly vulnerable – and parental factors such as history of significant domestic abuse, substance misuse or mental illness. Significant harm could occur where there is a single event, such as a violent assault or sexual abuse. More often, significant harm is identified when there have been a number of events which have compromised the child or young person's physical and psychological wellbeing; for example, when health and development is significantly impaired through neglect.

The difference between Child in Need and Child Protection

Professionals in all agencies have a responsibility to make a request to Children's Social Care when it is believed or suspected that the child or young person:

- Is unlikely to achieve or maintain, or to have the opportunity of achieving or maintaining, a reasonable standard of health or development without the provision for him of services by a local authority Section 17 Child in Need
- Health or development is likely to be significantly impaired, or further impaired, without the provision of services Section 17 Child in Need
- Has significant developmental or disability needs, which are likely only to be met through provision of Children's Social Care family support services (with agreement of the parent or carer) – Section 17 child in need
- Is likely to suffer significant harm – Section 47 Child Protection
- Has suffered significant harm – Section 47 Child Protection

When Children's Social Care undertakes a Section 47 child protection enquiry, the Pan Lancashire Safeguarding and Child Protection Procedures are followed.

Children's Social Care engagement with children in need Section 17 is on a voluntary basis. Parent/carers, or young people who are able to make decisions under Fraser Guidelines and Gillick Competence, can refuse some or all such offers of assistance. Often, families prefer a lower level of support such as that offered through their school or health centre because this is less stigmatising or intrusive.

Specific guidance regarding services and processes within each local authority area is detailed in part three.

With the needs of the child in mind, bespoke services are available for those young people supported through each local authority. Such services provide increased layers of targeted support in delivering greater outcomes for the children and young people who receive support through social care. This is with the aim of ensuring the right level of support and intervention is in place at the right juncture.

INDICATORS OF POSSIBLE NEED

The indicators of possible need listed under each heading are an indication of the likely level of need. Only by talking to children, young people and their families in more detail to explore the context, familial assets and the factors behind the need, will the practitioner be able to form a judgement as to the level of support needed. Holding a multi-agency meeting and completing an Early Help Assessment or CAF is a helpful way to share information and gain an understanding of the needs of the child, young person and family.

The indicators are a guide and not a pre-determined level of response. Practitioners should use evidence based professional judgement when carrying out assessments and should take account of age appropriate development needs of the unborn child, child or young person.

Level 1 - UNIVERSAL: Children and young people who make good overall progress in most areas of development and receive appropriate universal services, such as health care and education. They may also use leisure and play facilities, housing or voluntary sector services.
